This training will provide educators with a sequential overview and holistic perspective of how developmentally appropriate sexual health/HIV prevention education can be implemented beginning in kindergarten through grade 12. Fundamental youth development concepts will be highlighted. Educational approaches and methods of effective sexual health education, which accommodate the needs of youth at different ages and stages in their lives, will be featured. A multidimensional perspective of the concept of sexuality which is shaped by biological, psychological, social, and cultural factors will be discussed. Participants will take part in a combination of quality, interactive skills-based professional development that aim to help educators personalize the information as well as enhance further knowledge, understanding, confidence, and essential skills in becoming a resourceful and effective sexual health educator.
