No. Earned high school credits and college credits cannot be combined to apply for an Arizona HSE Diploma through the College Credit Pathway.

38. Will I be eligible for financial aid if I get my High School Equivalency Diploma through the College Credit Pathway?

Federal regulations establish that to be eligible to obtain financial aid, candidates must, among other things, “show you’re qualified to obtain a college or career school education by: having a high school diploma or a recognized equivalent such as a General Education Development (GED) certificate.”

The High School Equivalency Diploma through the College Credit Pathway is one such recognized equivalent and therefore you may be eligible for financial aid. Contact the financial office at your postsecondary school for more information.

39. Can financial aid help me pay for my college classes needed for the College Credit Pathway?

Individuals wanting to earn a High School Equivalency Diploma through the College Credit Pathway may be eligible for financial aid if they are currently enrolled in an eligible career pathway program and meet one of the “ability-to-benefit” alternatives.

For information about these criteria, talk to your Adult Education Program and the financial aid office at your postsecondary school. Your financial aid counselor can tell you whether your school offers an eligible career pathway program and can advise you about any ability-to-benefit tests the school uses.
