Session Date: 2/23/2021
Session Time: 10:40:00 AM

Presenters:
David Simmons

Description: Participants will engage in an interactive session which is Student-led, Project-based, Goal-oriented and Arts-infused. Much like the Saturday morning cartoon Schoolhouse Rock™, UBU Project Arts Integration Social Emotional Residencies utilize performing arts skills and curricula to support and enhance the work already being done within your SEL/PBIS curriculum. The exciting difference with these residencies and workshops is that: all lyrics and scripts are created by your students! During the course of this engaging presentation the participants will explore and discover and develop their own deeper understanding of the primary curriculum points which are known as the treasure chest of: hope, resilience, self-compassion and empathy. All while creating an original song and/or dramatic monologue based upon one of these treasure chest words. All skills will be taught as part of the process so no musical, writing or performing experience is necessary. Join us for an engaging, uplifting and fun-filled interactive experience!

Session Date: 2/23/2021  Session Time: 10:40:00 AM

Presenters:
Nicole Teyechea McNeil
Jill Crossley

Description: Effective learning occurs when content is experienced both academically and social-emotionally. The brain thrives on engagement using both sides of the brain to attain and critically access new learning, especially for disadvantaged children. To strengthen and build empathy, schools are moving toward focusing on social, emotional and academic patterns in learning. TWRLS of engagement is an acronym for Thinking, Writing, Reading, Listening and Speaking. TWRLS is used by administrators and teachers to systematically integrate social-emotional strategies and academic learning strategies simultaneously. It is a tool for monitoring, planning and developing habits of learning that empower students to access rigorous and complex content. This presentation is aligned to the Instruction category and serves to address Evidence-based practices, differentiation, English Learners and Cultural Diversity. TWRLS is a simple approach to a complex issue that benefits all learners.
Session Title: Beyond-Move on When Reading

Session Date: 2/23/2021  Session Time: 11:37:00 AM

Presenters:
Margaret Serna
Shawn Crosier

Description: Based on the belief: Students LEARN TO READ from kindergarten to third grade. From third grade and for the rest of their lives, they READ TO LEARN! SUSD Title I made the commitment to assure success for all our students by doing “whatever it takes” to guide them to become competent and confident readers. With that in mind and the Covid-19 Pandemic in full force, SUSD Title I Schools took on the innovative and critical task of developing a program that would not only bring needed intervention, but the kind of follow-up that will ensure student reading success, even if that meant intensive, one-on-one practice with a teacher in an online setting. Already after only completing phase 1 we are seeing significant success. Even more is expected as we continue to provide the support needed for every student to continue in this success. Phase 1 - 2020 Beyond - Move On When Reading Summer Jumpstart Program (one on one reading interventions services for recommended students). Phase 2 - Year 2 Support and Progress Monitoring of identified B-MOWR students. These selected B-MOWR students that have completed the Phase 1 will be assigned a Reading Case Worker (site assigned Title I Reading Specialist) that will be responsible for the 20 B-MOWR student’s reading progress monitoring. Each reading specialist will be responsible for progress monitoring or reading for the 14 assigned students that have completed Phase 1. The Reading Specialist will collaborate with the B-MOWR student’s classroom teacher (through regular schedule PLC collaborative meetings, provide additional resources if needed and provide parental engagement activities and resources to promote each child’s literacy skills. At any given time, if the student is not progressing, recommendation for a referral to the Student Study Team remains an option. Phase 3 - Students will continue to be monitored: Grade 3, Grade 4 and Grade 5. At this point, they will continue to receive intervention services if needed. Those students that have become proficient readers will in fact As we add 100 students per year, we will have supported over 300 students in reaching reading proficiency!!! Phase 4 (Transition to Middle School) - Elementary Instructional Specialists will collaborate with Middle School Instructional Specialists to facilitate the successful transition of identified B-MOWR students to 6th grade. Middle School Instructional Specialists will follow-up with identified B-MOWR students to ensure success in Middle School and beyond.

Session Title: Civic Learning through School Participatory Budgeting: An Inclusivity Approach

Session Date: 2/23/2021
Session Time: 1:46:00 PM

Presenters:

Madison Rock
Tara Bartlett

Description: School Participatory Budgeting (SPB) is a civic learning tool designed to increase student voice, collaboration, and critical thinking while helping youth develop the tools, pathways, and opportunities to contribute to their communities and civic life. In partnership with the Center for the Future of Arizona (CFA) and the Participatory Governance Initiative (PGI), Phoenix Union High School District (PXU) was the first to pilot the model with district dollars, scaling from one school in 2013-14 to district-wide expansion by 2019-20. SPB is now being implemented in five Arizona cities with a reach upwards of 50,000 students every year and continued growth and adoption anticipated in the coming years. In a first of its kind of effort, CFA and PGI partnered with the Arizona Developmental Disabilities Planning Council in the 2019-20 academic year to pilot and evaluate an inclusive SPB process alongside Carson Jr. High in Mesa, Arizona. Based on a growing body of evidence that students with disabilities are often excluded from civic engagement opportunities in K-12, and the long-term implications for adulthood, the project had a sharp focus on meaningfully engaging students with disabilities in all phases of the process. The project created a space for general education and special education students to work together, build relationships, and share leadership roles. SPB became one of the few spaces in which students with disabilities interacted regularly and on an equal basis with other student. Ultimately, the project’s success has pointed to SPB with an inclusive focus as a promising tool to help engage individuals with disabilities more fully in civic life, as outlined in Article 29 of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). This presentation will cover the history of SPB in Arizona and share lessons learned and promising practices for wider adoption of inclusive civic learning practices.

Session Date: 2/23/2021
Session Time: 2:43:00 PM

Presenters:
Ji Soo Song
Michael Arensdorff
Matt Hiefield

Description: Even before the COVID-19, gaps existed in the capacity of educators to implement effective learning experiences through the effective use of technology. The global pandemic then illuminated such gaps, bringing attention to how devices and access to the internet become used — or not used — in the hands of students to build competencies necessary to succeed in their futures, including computational thinking and digital citizenship. Recently, several leaders have stepped up to ensure that federal funds are used in a way that reinforces educators' skills in technology-empowered pedagogy, especially in online and blended environments (e.g. instructional design, assessments, inclusion and equity). Join the International Society for Technology in Education (ISTE) and a panel of experts in a virtual discussion around how Arizona districts can leverage federal funds to ensure educators are adequately provided with professional development opportunities grounded in nationally-recognized, research-based instructional frameworks.

Description: How can an elementary school in a small town in rural North Central Arizona provide an educational experience that would connect students with their community and empower them to impact change? How do we prepare students for jobs that don’t exist? And how do we equip them to solve the problems we don’t even know about yet?
We know that the traditional model of teaching and learning was not preparing students to be successful; it was not keeping pace with the ever-changing 21st Century world. Learning was not transferable; it was isolated and disconnected. Our search for the answer led us to 21st Century Learning with a focus on Collaboration, Critical Thinking, Communication, Creativity, and Community Connection. These 21st-century skills became the answer to the question and our community became the catalyst to make it happen. We would like to invite you to join us on a voyage, not a Celebrity cruise smooth and luxurious but more like the Gilligan island tour, rough and unexpected with the need to create necessities not only to survive but to thrive.

Session Title: Use of Trauma-informed Reflective Supervision Practice to Impact Occupational Stress and Teacher Burnout
Session Date: 2/24/2021
Session Time: 12:20:00 PM
Presenters:
Paulina Whitehat

Description: The presentation will focus on the use of trauma-informed reflective supervision practice with teachers to adapt, innovate, and respond to the demands of teaching students who are at high risk for experiencing trauma in their home or community. The prevalence of childhood trauma is evident in school settings in the U.S. and it is time to take action and respond to it. Many students experience adverse trauma in their environment while they are in early childhood or school-age (Finkelhor et al., 2015; McLaughlin et al., 2013). The number of children exposed to trauma in the U.S. was as high as one in two children in recent years (Overstreet & Chafouleas, 2016). A trauma-informed approach is a framework that can be used by a school system to address mental health issues that stem from exposure to trauma. Schools can respond with a strategic plan that addresses and informs teachers about issues associated with adverse trauma and propose solutions to mitigate their effects. Trauma-informed reflective supervision (TIRS) is a relationship-based practice that can be used as an intervention tool to reduce occupational stress for teachers. TIRS is an approach that can be integrated into school practice as a trauma-informed approach. The use of TIRS can increase resilience, self-efficacy, and self-care for teachers. TIRS can decrease secondary stress symptoms and teacher burnout.

Session Title: Coping with Crisis
Session Date: 2/24/2021
Session Time: 1:12:00 PM
Presenters:
Shirley Smith
Kate Fuller

Description: Regardless of our age, traumatic events shake our sense of safety, can fuel anxiety and leave us with a sense of uncertainty and foreboding. The resulting stress in the aftermath of a crisis impacts physical health, thoughts, feelings, and behavior. Young children are not equipped to process traumatic events independently and are highly influenced by the reaction of the adults around them. Adults supporting students in times of crisis can mitigate the intensity of a student’s response by managing their own emotions and thoughts, by responding proactively to protect students from actual dangers that may exist while giving clear directions, and by avoiding intense emotional displays that might increase the likelihood of a panic response from others. During this Session, participants will consider common reactions to crisis (including COVID-19), explore potential short and long-term effects, and brainstorm recovery activities for both adults and students that can be implemented in response to troubling events.
