Arizona Announces Grant Awards to Improve Literacy for Underserved Children

PHOENIX - The Arizona Department of Education (ADE) has selected 23 subgrantees for the $20 million federal Comprehensive Literacy State Development Grant (CLSD) to improve reading skills for students most in need of additional supports. The subgrantees serve more than 13,000 children across eight Arizona counties and will receive funding to implement evidence-based strategies that drive higher language and literacy achievement for underserved children from birth through high school.

The U.S. Department of Education awarded Arizona the CLSD grant in September 2020. The grant spans five years at $4 million per year.

Arizona's CLSD grant project — developed through the collaboration of ADE, Read On Arizona, and First Things First — targets children living in poverty, English learners, children with disabilities, Native American students, and those reading well below grade level, reflecting the federal grant program's emphasis on supporting underserved children.
