The Writing Revolution (TWR) provides a clear method of instruction that you can use no matter what subject or grade level you teach. The model can turn weak writers into strong communicators by focusing on specific techniques that match their needs and by providing them with targeted feedback. The Writing Revolution is as much a method of teaching content as it is a method of teaching writing. Teachers of all subjects adapt the strategies and activities to their current curriculum and weave them into their content instruction. But perhaps what's most revolutionary about the TWR method is that it takes the mystery out of learning to write well. It breaks the writing process down into manageable chunks and then has students practice the chunks they need, repeatedly, while also learning content. In our book study, we will review the TWR method and routines, and discuss how to apply them in our own K-12 classrooms.
